- EXPLORE THE NATURE BUT GENTLY link:

Knowledge truly is power, and in this case the more we know about our mother nature, the more power we will have to keep our world healthy and beautiful for generations to come. As increasing numbers of people seek the beauty and exhilaration of outdoors, our collective mark on the environment and its natural processes increases. So in order to minimize negative effects on the environment, an Outdoor Ethics Education Program known as LEAVE NO TRACE has been designed to promote and inspire responsible outdoor recreation.

Conserving nature is collective efforts depends on millions of individuals but remember everything starts from us, transform yourself first. Be the change!!! There is a set of seven principles to be applied to outdoor activities you should always keep in mind while traveling and they are;

1. Plan ahead and prepare
2. Camp and travel on durable surface
3. Dispose waste properly
4. Leave what you find
5. Respect wildlife
6. Be considerate of other visitors
7. Minimize camp fire

Third line: About Me and HD PICTURES

Born and raised in Pokhara valley overlooking massive Annapurna Range as a child I used to draw Mt. Fishtail (Macchapuchre) whenever I've to draw something in my classroom. From the beginning these mountains had stamped a different impact on me. Growing in Pokhara is the luckiest thing I believe as we are surrounded by lakes, green hills and massive ranges of mountain. My love towards nature is from the very beginning when I started to see and understand. As I was growing I kept travelling and exploring around the valley which allows me to understand and feel nature more.

Gradually, I did graduation in Tourism Management as I was always curious about traveling and exploring outdoors. After graduation I kept exploring more about mountaineering, since then it's been a hell of a journey for becoming Snowboard instructor to Mountain/Trekking Guide. But still long way to go, so much to learn and so much to see. Staying raw and curious is my main strength.

Forth line: HIMALAYA INVASION (Dream Projects)

HIMALAYA INVASION is my personal project which aims to promote sustainable and responsible tourism in the Himalayan region. These projects are basically focused on exploring and promoting new peaks which has huge potential in ski mountaineering and alpine style climbing in order to reduce carbon footprint.
